

Face Equality International – Communications Volunteer

Role Description

Background:

We are looking for someone to support the delivery of our digital communications strategy which focuses on building an empowered community of face equality activists and supporters.

This is a small charity, with a big mission, so this is a fantastic opportunity for someone to get involved and to bring about transformational change with and for the facial difference community.

Discrimination and indignities are a daily occurrence for the facial difference community. This is a hidden community that has continued to be marginalised, abused and neglected, throughout history. To this day we do not believe the injustice experienced by this unique community has been adequately recognised or addressed by global society.

About FEI:

Face Equality International is the first and only alliance of Non-Governmental Organisations (NGOs), charities and support groups which are working at national, regional or international levels to promote the campaign for 'face equality'.

The charity was founded in 2018 by the late Dr James Partridge, OBE in Guernsey, before registering as a UK charity in April 2022.

Our vision is for the global facial difference community to live freely, without indignity or discrimination. In order to achieve our vision, our mission is to position face equality as a social justice movement.

Responsibilities:

- Support our Communications Officer to deliver our Digital Communications Strategy
- Contribute to social media activity via copywriting, sourcing imagery and videos
- Inputting into creative ideas to further the face equality message

The above list of duties is indicative only and not exhaustive.

Experience & qualities:

Individuals are sought who have an interest and understanding of our mission. Experience, skills, and expertise in social media and communications is required, along with:

- Sound experience of building and sustaining relationships with key stakeholders and colleagues to achieve organisational objectives
- An understanding of the importance of trust, safety and confidentiality

- A commitment to promoting diversity, equity and inclusion
- Ability to communicate clearly and work as a team
